The essential guiding principle of the show is the intention to invite artists from Israel and Hungary into a thought-provoking and inspiring artistic dialogue, offering their unique perspectives in the specificity of paper as the medium of the creative process.

TALKING PAPER is meant to be exactly what the expression originally refers to: a draft or a sketch, free of limitations on its format, created for further refinement and enrichment. It is a framework or a starting point for artists and other actors of the Israeli and Hungarian contemporary art scenes to come, work and think together.

TALKING PAPER is to be continued and further developed at Art Market Budapest where Israeli contemporary art will be in the focus in Budapest, Hungary in October 2017.

ART MARKET BUDAPEST ANNOUNCES ISRAEL AS SPECIAL GUEST IN 2017

Art Market Budapest, one of Europe's prominent annual contemporary art events presenting 100 exhibitors from 4 continents of the world and showing works by over 500 artists on 6,000 square meters, is a special platform efficiently combining inspiring artistic content from emerging artistic sources in and beyond Europe and the progressive new generation of artists of the already established West. Exhibitors having arrived from over 35 countries and an annually growing audience of over 30 thousand international visitors clearly indicate that there is a strong demand in the art world for this artistic platform to bring freshness to the European and global art scene.

Art Market Budapest announces to invite Israel as guest country in 2017, and will dedicate a special program to Israeli art over the course of the fair in Budapest. Israeli art will appear in extraordinary richness and diversity on location at Art Market Budapest and many other art locations in Budapest.

Art Market Budapest teamed up with CAFe Budapest, one of Europe's most exciting contemporary art festivals to make Budapest an unmissable destination for the connoisseur audience, and a home-away-from-home for actors of the Israeli art scene.
